Welcome Letter

Welcome to Zagreb and the 3rd World Culturelink Conference!

We hope that you have had a pleasant journey to Zagreb and find your accommodation satisfying. Enclosed in this conference reader (last page) is a handy map of Zagreb City Centre indicating the locations of both your hotel and the conference venue, Mimara Museum. A walk to Mimara Museum from elsewhere in the city centre requires no more than 15 minutes.

Conference registration commences at 9am on Friday, 13 November, and closes an hour later. Registration takes place in the foyer of the museum and is followed by the Conference Opening Ceremony. The 3rd World Culturelink Conference will be opened by representatives of UNESCO Bresce, The Council of Europe, The Ministry of Culture of the Republic of Croatia, Zagreb City Assembly, and the Institute for International Relations (IMO).

Apart from the busy programme outlined in this reader, there are other conference events lined up for you. On Friday night we invite you to the reception for the conference participants and on Sunday at 10:30am there is a walking sightseeing tour of historical Zagreb. Just make sure to sign your name on the list at the registration table.

There are three notebook computers provided for your use in the Blue Room, situated on the Ground Floor of the Mimara Museum. Coffee and lunches will be served in the Museum Café according to the programme schedule.

In case of queries regarding any of the conference activities on the programme, please contact the reception desk at the conference venue. We shall be happy to provide assistance on all matters.

Finally, we wish you productive conference participation and a pleasant and enjoyable stay in Zagreb!

Biserka Cvjetičanin
Director of Culturelink Network
Background Information

In 2009 the Culturelink Network celebrates 20 years of its continuous networking and research activities in the field of cultural development, cultural policies, intercultural communication and international cultural cooperation. In the course of these 20 years, the Culturelink Network has evolved into a worldwide cooperation platform through which joint projects have been initiated and greatly contributed to new approaches in cultural research. Recently, Culturelink’s activities have focused on researching cultural change in the globalised world, especially in the field of networks and digital technologies.

Culturelink Network plans to mark the 20th anniversary of its continuous networking and research activities by addressing the topic of cultural networks in today’s digital environment. The 3rd World Culturelink Conference, entitled ‘Networks – The Evolving Aspects of Culture in the 21st Century’, aims to investigate the role and relevance that cultural networks hold in cultural development. In the last two decades, cultural networks have been a significant factor in supporting international cultural communication and cooperation. They are organized according to particular scopes and common aims, joining members from different countries or regions; thus contributing to the formation of an international community of peers. Hence, networks are considered as incubators of new ideas and meeting places for their members. They maintain and stimulate a process of intercultural dialogue and exchange that magnifies the specificities and diversities of cultures, leading to a better understanding of different cultures.

A retrospective overview of the cultural networks phenomenon over the past 20 years serves as grounds for a debate on new perspectives of cultural networking in the 21st century. Special consideration will be given to the issue of the position of cultural networks within cultural policies structures, as well as to the effective usage of innovative ICT and networking applications that significantly develop the modes and scopes of cultural networks' activities.

The 3rd World Culturelink Conference encompasses discussions on the promotion and affirmation of cultural diversity and intercultural communication through the networking processes and closely examines case studies from all regions of the world, thus providing comparative examples and experiences on a global level.

The conference agenda builds on the expertise of its participants which includes representatives from UNESCO, the Council of Europe, national cultural ministries, the public cultural sector and civil society representatives, cultural networks and portals coordinators, cultural policy consultants, and arts and cultural professionals.

10:30 am Session 1: Twenty Years of Cultural Networking
Moderators: Biserka Cvjetičanin and Ana Žuvela Bušnja, Culturelink/IMO, Croatia

This session looks at a long and successful history of Culturelink but also reflects on the emergence of cultural networks and global networking. These processes have marked contemporary culture on the level of society, social institutions, creative activities, arts and arts education. Cultural networks have become platforms for the interaction of all who participate in such communication. Presentations in this session focus on the general issues within the context of networking but also analyse current trends and relevant practices through several case studies from Europe, Australia and the Asia-Pacific region. They highlight the need to revisit the concept of cultural establishment, initial development of cultural networks and the current status of networks, key agents, dominant approaches and challenges networks rethinking some key questions such as: the context of creation of networks and the rationale for this.

These will initiate a discussion on culture in the 21st century, its diversity, sustainable models of development and modes of cultural communication and interaction on the local, regional and global level.

3:00 pm Session 2: Effects of ICT and Digital Culture on Networking Dynamics

Moderator: Aleksandra Uzelac, Culturelink/IMO, Croatia

Most theorists and cultural activists agree that ICT and digitalisation of culture have made a significant impact on contemporary life. Networks are one of the most effective manifestations of the advantages of ITC. In the actual social environment networks have been created as platforms of cultural interaction and exchange which utilise diverse modes of communication. Presentations in this session focus on the aspects of networking dynamics in the cultural sector using examples of Web 2.0 and Web 3.0 as well as popular modes of communication such as blogs, video-sharing sites and other modes of communication. Discussions will particularly focus on the present state of cultural interaction of museums and museum practices as tools for engagement of wider audiences, artists, curators and other cultural professionals. This raises a number of questions of the actual cultural practices, their efficacy in linking diverse cultural contexts, strategies of sustainable development, technology which facilitates cultural interaction and the way technology shapes cultural practices in a constantly changing landscape of digital communication.

9:30 am Session 3: Cultural Networks and Cultural Policy
Moderator: Nada Švob Đokić, Culturelink/IMO, Croatia

Cultural policies and cultural networks complement each other in their effort to structure and thus enable effective interaction between various cultural actors in exchanging their expertises, creative ideas and creative practices. Cultural policies have reached their maturity and entered the mainstream agendas for economic development. Therefore, there is a need to reflect on the position of cultural policies within such a dynamic context and make strategic adjustments in order to become and remain effective on all levels of social and cultural life. Presentations in this session will address and discuss key issues of the value of cultural networks. Such broader frames will be supported by examples and experiences of cultural networks in Latin America, Africa and Asia and their socio-cultural significance in these regions. The case studies will present a spectrum from well established cultural networks to those in process of achieving their primary goals or still in the initial phase of implementation. What they have in common are questions of their status in relation to the national and trans-national policy making, innovative practices of cultural policy making, and innovative forms of cultural policymaking in the local and global contexts.

This session will further discuss most of the key issues raised in the previous sessions. It will highlight networking culture within its current context and identify areas of shared concern which will generate discussion on the crucial questions about the future of cultural networking and possible futures of cultural networks. Most issues of diversity of cultural identities and diversity of cultural expressions as well as diversity of emerging identities of networks will be revisited. This will highlight the need to identify priority issues of common interest and establish effective strategies that will lead to the next stage of development of cultural networks in a constantly changing technological, socio-economic and cultural environment.

The Blog and the Shared Present
Session 2: Effects of ICT and Digital Cultural on Networking Dynamics

Fritzie Brown is Executive Director at CEC ArtsLink, a New York based cultural exchange organization. Among her many activities, she produced FlipFest! last fall to celebrate the 15th anniversary of the ArtsLink Awards. While serving as Program Director at CEC ArtsLink for 8 years she streamlined and restructured the ArtsLink Awards program, co-directed the acclaimed internet/residency go_HOME, and developed and produced Flipside, the exhibition and catalogue that celebrated 12 years of ArtsLink exchanges. In New York she was Director of Operations and Interim Executive Director at Headlands Center for the Arts, an international arts centre and residency program, before she joined CEC 1997. Brown has moderated and participated in public panels both in the US and in Europe concerning artists’ communities and visual and performing arts issues. She has also served on numerous national and international grant selection panels and is a member of the Alliance of Artists Communities, ArtTable. She recently completed a term on the College Art Association’s International Committee. She studied fine arts at San Francisco State University and her visual artwork has been exhibited in the US, Poland, Croatia and the Slovak Republic.

Session 2: Effects of ICT and Digital Cultural on Networking Dynamics

Branka Cvjetičanin is a multimedia artist born in Zagreb, Croatia. Her educational background is based in the performing arts and site-specific installations (MAPA – Academy for Performing Arts Amsterdam, for example). In 2006 she received her PhD from Bauhaus Kollege Dessau. In 1999 Cvjetičanin initiated the Polygon: Centre for Research and Project Development, working on artist exchange programs and setting up research/pre-production residencies, but also questioning the ‘architecture’ of an art organization itself. She completed numerous collaborative works with international artists and is a member of the HZSU (Croatian Association of Independent Artists). Cvjetičanin is the recipient of several awards and internships including the NUFFIC award the Gulliver Exchange Programme (The Netherlands, 1998) and the Foundation Marcel Hicter award for EU Diploma (Belgium, 2000). Most recently she has participated in projects such as ‘War Fields’ at the Barcelona BAC Festival and ‘C Words’ at the Arnolfini Gallery in Bristol, United Kingdom.

Currently, he is a professor at the Open School of Economic and Social Policy (FOPES). He has collaborated on several works with other experts, including ‘Training in Transnational cultural co-operation Projects – Reflections and Challenges on Validation and Certification’, a VANIA project.

activities such as Intergroup, Steering Committee, as well as in the Discourses on Europe and the ‘Messenger’ idea.

Mary Ann DeVlieg, IETM, Belgium
Time for a NEW EU CULTURAL DEAL
Session 4: Evolving Networking Culture

Mary Ann DeVlieg has been working in the cultural sector for over 30 years, holding various posts in Europe and the USA. The majority of her work has been in the performing arts (creation, production, diffusion) in an international context with a special emphasis on policy, diversity and professional training. She is currently the Secretary General of IETM (International Network for Contemporary Performing Arts) and the Chair of the EU Working Group on Creativity and Creation (EU Culture Platform, Access to Culture). In 2006 the EU's DG for Employment and Social Affairs awarded her the Individual Award for her life-long services to artists’ mobility. In 2008, she served on the High Level Reflection Group on Mobility of the European Commission’s DG for Education and Culture. In 2009, she served on the Steering Committee for the conference ‘Culture and Creation as Vectors of Development in the ACP Countries’, initiated by the EU Commissioner for Development, Louis Michel. DeVlieg is a founder of the Roberto Cimetta Fund for Mobility of Mediterranean Artists and Operators and founder of www.on-the-move.org, a mobility portal for the arts. Her past and current Advisory Committees and Boards include Fondazione Fitzcarraldo (Torino), FEMEC (Forum of Euro-Mediterranean Cultures) and the Forum Cultural Mundial, Brazil 2004 and 2006. She was on the Executive Committee of the European Forum of the Arts and Heritage (EFAH, now Culture Action Europe) from 1995 – 2005. She has an MA in European Cultural Policy and Management from the University of Warwick, United Kingdom.

Nadhezhda Dimitrova Savova, Artestransformador Network, Bulgaria
The Impact of the Global Network of Community Cultural Centers dedicated to Voluntary Arts for Social Change
Session 1: Twenty Years of Cultural Networking

Nadhezhda Dimitrova Savova is a doctoral candidate from Bulgaria in Cultural Anthropology at Princeton University, where she is also a Research Fellow at the Princeton Center for Arts and Cultural Policy Studies (CACPS) at the Woodrow Wilson School of Public and International Affairs. Nadhezhda has a BA in International Relations and Spanish Literature from Furman University, South Carolina, and she is currently conducting research on cultural policy and community development through the arts within a comparative study of the community cultural centres networks in Bulgaria (chitalishte), Brazil (pontos de cultura) and Cuba (casas de cultura). Nadhezhda explores the practical implementation of UNESCO’s Conventions from 2003 and 2005 by examining these centres as spaces for the "safeguarding of intangible cultural heritage" and more broadly for the "promotion of the diversity of cultural expressions" in modern and traditional art for social revitalization. Through her academic work, Nadezhda is a co-founder and the current president of the International Council for Cultural Centers (I3C), which is being developed as a global network of national networks of community cultural centres with the purpose to serve as the voice and support for community arts initiatives internationally while enabling individual centres to exchange information and partner for further local vitality through the arts.

Cristina Farinha, Freelance Researcher, Portugal

Networks as Contemporary Diasporas: Artists in between Individuality and the Community in Europe

Session 4: Evolving Networking Culture

Cristina Farinha was born in 1973 in Porto, Portugal. She originally studied sociology and later specialized in arts, culture and communication as well as Portuguese and EU labour law in Porto, Lisbon and Paris. Since the mid-90s, she has worked from the north of Portugal to the European stage as a lecturer, researcher and policy adviser on the role of culture in governance and development and on the empowerment of the sector in what comes to its social and employment status. Since 2004, first from Utrecht, then Brussels and currently Porto, she analyses how freedom of circulation along with the new means of communication are used by artists in Europe and in which ways mobility is changing not only artistic practices and professional profiles but also Europe as a whole, as part of her PhD research at the Utrecht School of the Arts (HKU) in the Netherlands. Since 2007, she has also been acting as editor for labforculture.org.

Jean Paul Fourmentraux, L'École des hautes études en sciences sociales (EHESS), France

Innovative Artists: Transformations of Work and Arts Organizations with ICT

Session 2: Effects of OCT and Digital Culture on Networking Dynamics

Born in Fes, Morocco in 1970, Jean Paul Fourmentraux lives and works in Paris and Lille, France. He has been a Professor at the University of Lille 3 and member of the Geriico Laboratory of Communication Sciences. He worked as Associate Researcher at the Centre for the Sociology of Work and the Arts (CNRS UMR 8082) in the Paris School for Advanced Studies in Social Sciences (EHESS) and before that, at the Centre de Sociologie de l’Innovation, ENSMP-CNRS, Paris. He was a Postdoctoral Fellow at the INRS Urbanisation, Culture et Société (Canadian Institute for Scientific Research) in 2003, and at the CNRS (French National Centre for Scientific Research) in 2004 and 2005. He now works on the pluridisciplinary research project PRACTICABLE: The Work of Art as Dispositif: Setting the Stage for Audience Participation with support from the French National Research Agency (ANR) (2009 – 2011). Fourmentraux’s interests and research projects include the socio-economy of innovation and the Internet, the sociology of culture and artistic work, the social appropriations and uses of the ICT and the Sociology of media communication.

Fourmentraux has produced several research reports on technology convergence and new forms of consortiums to foster innovative “research and creation” that has the potential to generate spinoffs and added value, not only from an artistic perspective, but a scientific and industrial one as well. These include HEXAGRAM: Institute for Research-Creation in Media Arts and Technologies (Montréal, Canada) and ARTEM: Arts, Technology and Management (Nancy, France). He is co-author of two research reports for the Plastic Arts Delegation to the French Ministry of Culture: Visual Culture and Group Art on the Web (1999) and Between the Artist and the Computer Scientist: a Space of Arbitration, Translation, Negotiation (2001).

Focus on Art for Social Transformation: Art is a Right
Session 3: Cultural Networks and Cultural Policy

Rasia Friedler is the founder and director of SaludArte (Foundation for the Promotion of Health through Art and Humor). She is representative of the Latin Network of Art for Social Transformation.

She has studied psychology, psychotherapy and arts, including psychoanalysis, psychodrama, Playback Theatre, teaching and writing. Friedler is also the founder and artistic director of the Spontaneous Dance Company and the Spontaneous Theatre Company of SaludArte. She also founded and coordinated the Department of Art and Psychology of the Faculty of Psychology at the University of the Republic (2004-2008). She has contributed to numerous magazines, journals and books including Topia Magazine (Psychoanalysis, society and culture), the Journal of the Uruguayan Association of Psychoanalytic Psychotherapy (AUDEPP) and the International Journal of Psychotherapy of the European Association for Psychotherapy.

SaludArte is a foundation that acts to combine various subjects, such as health, art and humour, with special emphasis in the area of health promotion and prevention. SaludArte endeavours to aid in the recovery of senses, foster human contact and develop the creative imagination. It is integrated by artists, art therapists and health professionals who employ diverse resources to facilitate participation and recreation that elude the methodological conventions employed in the practices of health and education. SaludArte stimulates the self-managing processes of caring about health, encouraging the development of potential and possibility in youth, fortifying social networks, generating climates of empathy and respect for diversity and encouraging strategies of solidarity.

Network Sustainability and Institutional Change: Balancing Resources, Capabilities and Performance

Session 1: Twenty Years of Cultural Networking

Sarah Gardner is the founding Executive Director of the International Federation of Arts Councils and Culture Agencies, the global network of national arts funding bodies. Established in 2001, IFACCA has members in nearly 80 countries and provides a meeting ground and information resource for arts policy makers and managers. From 1990 until 2001, Sarah held various senior executive roles at the Australia Council for the Arts, primarily as the Director of Strategy and Policy. She was formerly the Director of Public Affairs for the Australian Bicentennial Authority and a consultant in the private and public sectors for the leading Australian firm Issues Australia. Sarah has a Master’s in Public Policy and a BSc.

Luisa Gomez Martinez, Universidad de Barcelona, Spain

Cuestionando la Des-territorialización: Hiperterritorio y Dimensiones Imaginarias de la Espacialidad en Relación a las Nuevas Cartografías

Session 2: Effects of ICT and Digital Culture on Networking Dynamics

Luisa Gomez Martinez holds a degree in Art History from the University of Santiago de Compostela (2001 – 2006). She completed a two year doctorate course (2006 – 2008) in History, Theory and Art Criticism at the University of Barcelona and presented, in September 2008, the DEA Visuals de la Imagen Tecnológica: Antecedentes de la Espacio-Temporalidad en la Era Digital.

In 2006 Gomez Martinez received a grant for Research Fellow training which began a link between the University of Barcelona’s Department of Art History and the research group ‘Art, Architecture and Digital Society’. During the 2007 – 2008 academic year she obtained an MA in Advanced Studies in Art History, presenting her Master’s thesis Imaginario Espacio-Temporal Contemporáneo: de la Imagen Tecnológica a la Cultura Digital in November 2008.

She is currently pursuing her doctoral thesis, directed by Dr Anna Casanovas, Lecturer in the Department of Art History at University of Barcelona, and co-directed by Dr Berenson, Senior Lecturer in the Faculty of Arts at UNAM. Her research interests revolve around the contemporary imagination, particularly the imaginary space-time – and new media influences on this – focusing on film and other media such as Net.Art or Virtual Reality, and the interrelationship between artistic languages in the context of digital society.

Prior to that he was Director of the Institute for Cultural Policy Studies at Griffith University and Chief Executive Officer of Qntm Australia Co-operative Multimedia Centre. He has published, presented and consulted widely in the areas of cultural policy and new media in Asia, the Americas, Australasia and Europe and his work has been translated into seven languages. His most recent book is Towards Cultural Citizenship: Tools for Culture and Development, published by Gidlunds Forlag in 2002. He is now a freelance Research
Consultant operating across the cultural sector and specialising in creative industries, new media, and cultural mapping and planning.

Garry Neil, INCD, Canada

The Success of Global NGOs around the UNESCO Cultural Diversity Convention: Harbinger of a Broad Movement, or the End of International Cultural Activism?

Session 4: Evolving Networking Culture

Garry Neil, a graduate of the University of Toronto and a principal of Neil Craig Associates, brings close to 30 years of experience to clients in the arts and all cultural industries. After a 15 year career with ACTRA, during which he became CEO of the national association of Canadian performers, writers and broadcast journalists, Neil formed Neil Craig Associates in 1992 to assist firms, associations and others with an interest in cultural policy. For three years, he was also primary spokesperson for the Canadian-owned book publishing industry as Executive Director of the Association of Canadian Publishers, a position he left in 1995 to work full-time as a consultant. His primary work involves researching and preparing reports and analyses, and assisting clients to make their views known publicly and to governments. As Executive Director of the International Network for Cultural Diversity, Neil has spoken around the world on diversity issues since 1999. INCD and Neil were in the forefront of the global campaign which led to the adoption of UNESCO’s convention on cultural diversity in 2005. Other global clients have included the Ingram Book Company, the International Labour Office, Screen Actors Guild and the International Federation of Actors. Neil is presently chair of the Dancer Transition Resource Centre. He is a former Vice-President of the Canadian Conference of the Arts, served on the Executive of the Ontario Film Development Corporation and was a member of the Canada’s Sectoral Advisory Group on International Trade. He was founding chair of what is now the Cultural Human Resources Council and chair of the Cultural Industries Council of Ontario. He is the author of numerous articles on culture and globalization.

La Construction de Réseaux dans la Secteurs Émergents: Entre Lobbying et Coalition de Cause

Session 4: Evolving Networking Culture

Philippe Teillet, born in 1958, is professor in political science at the Institute of Political Studies at the University of Grenoble. He holds a PhD in Political Science and is a member of the Research Institute PACTE (CNRS). His research projects relate mainly to cultural policies and more precisely to the changing of public policies in the cultural field and to the political dimension of cultural policies. His work takes two directions: firstly, the integration by public policies of cultural activities for a long time considered as illegitimates (as popular music such as rock, etc.), and secondly, the effects of decentralisation on cultural policies. He conducts the Master’s course Direction of Cultural Projects at the Institute of Political Studies at the University of Grenoble with the collaboration of the Cultural Policies Observatory of Grenoble.

Mike van Graan, ARTerial Network, South Africa
Making Sense of International Cultural Discourse for Africa: the Role of the Arterial Network

Session 3: Cultural Networks and Cultural Policy

Mike van Graan is the Executive Director of the African Arts Institute based in Cape Town and heads the Secretariat of the Arterial Network, a civil society network of artists, NGOs and institutions active in the creative sector across the African continent. He recently served as the Programme Director of the fourth World Summit on Arts and Culture, a project of the International Federation of Arts Councils and Culture Agencies (IFACCA). Elected to leadership positions in a range of arts organisations and lobbies both before and after the demise of apartheid, he was appointed as a Special Adviser on cultural policy to the new Minister of Arts, Culture, Science and Technology after the country’s first democratic elections in 1994, where he helped to facilitate the drafting of post-apartheid arts and culture policies. He is an award-winning columnist, having provided extensive and provocative commentary on arts and culture developments in South Africa, and is considered one of the country’s leading contemporary playwrights.

Moderator: Session 3

Dr Nada Švob-Đokić is Senior Researcher/Scientific Adviser at the Institute for International Relations (IMO), Zagreb. Her research areas include cultural transitions and globalization, cultural and creative industries, and public policies related to culture, science and technology. Her bibliography encompasses about 300 titles of published books, monographs, studies, research reports, articles and reviews. Dr Švob-Đokić has previously directed courses on Redefining Cultural Identities and on Cultural Transitions in Southeastern Europe at the Inter-University Center in Dubrovnik (1999 – 2007). Currently, she teaches courses on cultural globalization and cultural industries in the Department of Cultural Studies at the University of Rijeka. Her current research project at the Institute for International Relations is entitled ‘Global Influences and Local Cultural Changes’.

Aleksandra Uzelac,
Culturelink/IMO, Croatia
Moderator: Session 2

Aleksandra Uzelac is Research Fellow at the Institute for International Relations (IMO), Zagreb, Croatia, and Head of the Department for Culture and Communication at IMO. She holds a PhD (2003) in Information Science from the University of Zagreb. Based on an investigation of concrete cultural practices, her interests developed towards the impact of ICTs on cultural issues, virtual networks and portals, digitization of culture, and the changing context that virtual culture has brought to cultural policies. Her present interest centres around the impacts of the globalization and commercialization of society and the virtual sphere on cultural diversity. Results of her research have been published in books and journals in Croatia and abroad. In 2008 she co-edited the book Digital Culture: The Changing Dynamics. Uzelac combined her research activities with practical initiatives aimed at developing the e-culture infrastructure in Croatia, initiating the www.culturenet.hr project in 2000, a Croatian national cultural portal. She has been a member of the Culturelink Network team and its editorial board since 1993. Since 2006 she is a member of the International Steering Committee of the Culturemondo Network.
Ana Žuvela Bušnja,
Culturelink/IMO, Croatia
Moderator: Session 1

Annie Wright holds a double BA from the University of Victoria, Canada and an MA in Modern and Contemporary Literature, Culture and Theory from the University of Sussex, United Kingdom. Her areas of interest include the appropriation of culture of developing countries, community development through the arts, migrants and issues of ethnic identities, and the globalization and commodification of the ‘exotic’. She has published articles in both British and Croatian media.
Cultural Networks, Cultural Networking: Selected Literature

Cultural networks have a history long enough to enable reflection on their pasts, the beginnings of networking as a concept, and technologies which enabled global communication but which also transformed possibilities of local networking. Dynamic history of cultural networks shows various aspects of democratisation of media, introduction of open models of interaction, development of cultural policies, modified strategies of decision making processes and interaction and exchange of expertise on a global scale. These models of communication also increased awareness of fragile structures and bonds that keep cultures together (and apart). With changed notions of time and space, issues of identity, cultures and cultural activities in local and global contexts, rapid changes of ITC, global distribution of these resources and other issues, some old and many new obstacles have (re)surfaced. Academic literature has indicated the main elements, processes, structures, participants and interaction of all these factors.

Earlier literature and research studies listed the main trends and complexity of changes as a result of introduction of ICT on a popular scale. It also highlighted the key issues and concepts related to these changes. These included issues of participatory media (Gere, Gitelman, Negroponte, Porter, Poster), individuals and communities in cyberspace (Benedikt, Dutton, Levy, Lovink, Ludlow, Rheingold, Smith and Kollock), identities (Bell, Foster, Harcourt, Lovink), embodiment, sexuality and race (Bell, Cherny and Weise, Featherstone, Haraway, Hayles, Wajcman, Wolmark), the nature of interaction between the internet users (Castells, Levy) and, which is of our particular concern, cultures in cyberspace and cultural networking (Castells, Levy, Pool).

A body of literature by these and other authors contributed to creation of a theoretical platform for further research which (re)confirmed that connection was more important than division. More recent literature argues that in contrast to digital culture, under network culture information is less the product of processing than of the outcome of the networked relations between them, of links between people, between technologies and between technologies and people. It is unclear whether the immaterial production of information and its distribution through networks is and will remain the dominant organisational principle for the global economy and inter-cultural communication.

It remains open whether networked actors can come together to make more and better informed decisions democratically and transparently. The most challenging question is how the actors in such overlapping, constantly distracted and disrupted groupings (re)form identities occupying overlapping networks and (re)create identity of the overlapped networks.

Practical Information

Zagreb Orientation

Located on the banks of the Sava River Sava, Zagreb is the capital city of Croatia. It is the economic, cultural, and academic centre of the country. Zagreb is a dynamic and innovative place, offering a variety of occupational, cultural, and recreational opportunities. While it is large enough to provide the options one might expect in a bigger city, Zagreb is small enough to be inviting and accessible. The city centre can easily be explored on foot, allowing one to roam freely among architecture and history. Zagreb is served by national and international bus and train lines. Zagreb Airport is served by most major airlines.

Arrival and Transport

Via Airplane or Bus
Accessing the city centre is made possible via shuttle bus between the airport and bus station (30 kuna/€4) and the Zagreb local tram network (10 kuna/€1.50). The airport shuttle terminates at the Zagreb bus station, from which point tram number 6 (heading north, or left upon exiting the station), displaying the name Crnomerec, travels to Zagreb's main square, Trg Bana Josipa Jelacica. The tram is payable on board or via mobile by texting ZG to 8585.

Via Train
Zagreb train station is in close proximity to Zagreb’s main square, the Institute for International Relations and the Mimara Museum. Taxis are easily available upon exiting the station, and trams numbered 9 and 2 heading east (left upon exiting train station) stop at Vodnikova, from which the Institute and Mimara Museum are easily accessible on foot. The main square can be accessed via a short ride on tram number 6 (also heading east).

Important Locations

The 3rd World Culturelink Conference will be held at the Mimara Museum, on Trg (Square) Franklin Delano Roosevelt 5. Mimara Museum is located in a neo-Renaissance palace from the end of the 19th century. The holdings comprise 3,750 works of art of various methods and materials, and different cultures and civilizations. The Museum was founded with a donation from Ante ‘Mimara’ Topid, a Croatian art collector and benefactor. It opened to the public in 1987.

The Institute for International Relations is located only a block away from Mimara Museum on the corner of Vukotinovića Street and Marko Marulic Square. The official address is Vukotinovića 2 and the building is on the north side of the street.

Currency and Weather

Currency
The currency used in Croatia is the Kuna (7.27 kuna ≈ €1). Some restaurants, hotels and other tourist venues will accept foreign currency, mainly Euros, but Kunas are the preferred method of payment. Almost all of the restaurants, bars, hotels and shops accept all major credit cards. Most major national bank cards will work in Croatian ATMs, such as Zagrebačka Banka and Splitska Banka.
Weather
Zagreb is affected by the European continental climate, and goes through four different seasons. In November, at the time of the conference, weather in Zagreb is usually rainy and rather cold. High temperatures in November reach 9°C, with average lows of 4°C.

Eat, Drink, Shop and Enjoy
Zagreb's numerous museums, galleries, theatres, restaurants, and shopping malls provide something for every taste and mood.

Eat
Zagreb's culinary scene includes wide-ranging, diverse ethnic flavours and many traditions in Croatian fare. Fine dining establishments serve multi-course meals in historic settings or creative new cuisine in hip, bright, and cosmopolitan spaces. Below is a list of some of the popular dining venues:

• Argante (Croatian/Mediterranean); Zagrebačka Avenija 100a
• Takenoko (Japanese); Nova Ves 17
• Baltazar (Croatian); Nova Ves 4
• Boban (Italian); Gajeva 9
• Mu Steak and Chop House (American/Croatian); Ulica Grada Vukovara 72
• Makronova (Macrobiotic/Vegan Friendly); Ilica 72

Drink
Cafe culture is alive and vibrant in Zagreb, where you can find a café in any street, residential block or business zone. Seek out charming cafes, informal bistros, and neighbourhood pubs around Jelačić Square, Cvjetni Square, and Tkalcicev Street. Below are just a few of the many charismatic cafes Zagreb has to offer:

• K & K (books and coffee); Jurišćeva 5
• Tolkien’s House (inspired by the author); Vranicanijeva 8
• Kazališna Kavana (café at the National Theatre); Trg Maršala Tita
• Bulldog (late night soul music); Bogovićeva 6
• Ćića (rakija bar); Tkalciceva 7

Shop
You'll find boutiques and specialty shops in charming historic settings, mainly around Jelačić Square and Ilica Street. Or, head to the malls for a thriving collection of stores, cafes and service businesses.
